Questions and Answers:

What is PURADIGM® Technology?

NASA used this PCO technology for their space station hydroponic growing system and space shuttle missions. The technology was also used for keeping the air and surfaces clean in their Zero Gravity Laboratory. The technology has been around for approximately 20 years. Patented improvements have been made by PURADIGM® in the last few years that have significantly increased the technologies effectiveness.

Is the technology safe?

Yes. It is completely safe for occupied environments. The ion clusters break down into Oxygen, water vapor and CO2 which we exhale every second. GC-MS testing (gas chromatography-mass spectrometry) performed at Kansas State University shows that the technology does not create undesirable or harmful chemicals. Test results concluded that the technology is completely safe for occupied spaces and does not harm humans, animals, or plants. The GC-MS test is regarded as the "gold standard" for forensic substance identification.
